

Tactical Combat Casualty Care Updates

Harold R. Montgomery, ATP; Frank K. Butler, MD

Tactical Combat Casualty Care (TCCC) and the Committee on TCCC have entered the social media space of the Internet and mobile world. Social media have become a critical conduit between business, organizations, and governments with the connected people of the world. This is especially true of the military ranks. Social media have been a significant part of their lives for the past several years and have become a critical means of informative communication. In the same manner that TCCC changes based on medical evidence, best practices, and lessons learned, TCCC must adapt to the best means to stay connected to the communities of interest.

Medics, corpsman, PJs—all Servicemembers and everyone interested in TCCC can follow us on a number of social media platforms. Simply “Like” or “Subscribe” or “Follow” us on your preferred platform and we will push the latest on guidelines changes, curricula updates, best practices, and training notes. Tune in to the TCCC podcasts or watch the newest procedural videos. We are attempting to provide a medium for each of the major types of social platform that best reaches the community.

Users can now access TCCC material and messaging through a variety of Web-based and mobile platforms. The primary TCCC education material source of www.cotccc.com will migrate to the Defense Health Agency–sponsored www.DeployedMedicine.com as well as the downloadable mobile app called Deployed Medicine. TCCC will be the foundation of this new learning system sponsored by the Defense Health Agency.
